

A Blessed Woman by Margaret Ramey

Ms. Louise P. was born in 1929 at home. Her children raise up and called her blessed. She got married very young but her husband left her when her children were very young.

Ms. P. worked very hard to provide for her children as long as she could. Finally she was forced to place them in the care of welfare. She thought they would be cared for better.

Today they are reconciled as a family.

Ms P. has one granddaughter that she loves very much. They spend a lot of time together. It is good that they are no longer separated and they know one another.

Ms. P.'s birthday is February 13. She will be seventy-nine. She will celebrate with her family because they know how hard she worked for them and they love her. She deserves being around them for special occasions.
